Traits: Extraverted – 60%, Intuitive – 55%, Feeling – 74%, Prospecting – 68%, Turbulent – 56%

Role: Diplomat

Strategy: Social Engagement

- Campaigner: True free spirits, campaigners (ENFPs) are outgoing, kindhearted, and open-minded. They distinguish themselves from the throng by their vibrant, positive outlook on life. But, despite the fact that they can be the life of the party, campaigners aren't only interested in having fun. The desire for profound, emotional relationships with other individuals runs deep within these personality types.

- Extraverted: Extravert (also spelled as "extrovert") refers to a personality trait characterized by a preference for socializing, external stimulation, and engaging with the world around them. Extraverts are typically energized by being around other people, enjoy interacting with others, and tend to be outgoing and talkative.
- Intuitive: People with Intuitive trait tend to be more interested in abstract concepts and ideas, and may rely on their intuition and imagination to make decisions. They tend to look for patterns and connections between seemingly unrelated things, and may be less concerned with concrete details. Their thinking is still sharp and focused. An intuitive person has a heightened sense of observation, which makes it simple for them to get the knowledge they require to make decisions.
- Feeling: it means that you tend to make decisions based on your personal values, emotions, and empathy for others, rather than relying on logic and objective analysis. Feeling individuals tend to be attuned to the feelings and needs of others, and may prioritize harmony and consensus in social situations. They often have a strong sense of personal values and may base their decisions on what aligns with their personal beliefs and morals. They usually prioritize building and maintaining relationships with others, and may value cooperation and collaboration.
- Prospecting: They tend to be more spontaneous, adaptable, and open-minded. They prefer to keep their options open and may enjoy exploring different possibilities before making a decision. They are often curious and enjoy trying new things, but may struggle with making decisions or sticking to a strict schedule. Prospecting individuals tend to be flexible and adaptable to changing circumstances, and may enjoy exploring different possibilities before committing to a plan. They are often open-minded and curious, and enjoy learning about new ideas and perspectives.
- Turbulent: They tend to experience a greater degree of emotional volatility, stress, and self-doubt compared to those who score low in Turbulent. They may be more sensitive to criticism, have a lower self-esteem, and may struggle with decision-making. Turbulent individuals tend to be more sensitive to their own and others' emotions, and may experience greater emotional highs and lows. They may have high standards for themselves and others, and may feel stressed or anxious when those standards are not met. Turbulent individuals may struggle with self-doubt and may be more prone to feelings of inadequacy or imposter syndrome.
- Diplomat: Diplomats tend to be highly attuned to their own emotions as well as the emotions of others. They are often guided by a strong sense of personal values and a desire to make a positive difference in the world. Diplomats tend to be excellent listeners and communicators, and may excel in roles that require empathy, creativity, and intuition.
